

“It’s an excellent video, very true to Pow Wow settings.”

◆
“The video is a good first step to use in my food safety training for Pow Wow food vendors.”

◆
“This video will help raise awareness about the importance of serving safe foods at Pow Wows.”

Comments from sanitarians and food safety educators.

CELEBRATING SAFE FOOD AT POW WOWS

An important, new training video for Native communities

From Montana State University Extension

Celebrating Safe Food at Pow Wows is an exciting new video training tool packed with great information to help Native American entrepreneurs thrive. The information in this video spells out how food vendors can boost profits by learning and practicing food safety techniques.

Good food is an essential part of what makes celebrations and Pow Wows so much fun. But, keeping food safe can be a challenge for anyone who prepares and serves food at these special events, especially outdoor events.

With this video you’ll learn the six key areas so important to every food vendor. You’ll learn how to safely and easily:

1. Keep hot foods hot;
2. Keep cold foods cold;
3. Use effective hand washing practices;
4. Sanitize utensils and contact surfaces;
5. Buy food from approved sources; and
6. Store food.

The video covers important information for anyone serving food at Pow Wows or other temporary settings and for tribal and Indian Health Service sanitarians and food safety educators.

Use this video training tool in your community to:

- Build awareness about the importance of food safety;
- Teach basic food safety concepts; and
- Promote good working relationships among sanitarians, food vendors and food safety trainers, such as Extension educators.

Order your video or DVD today for just $14.95 free shipping & handling.

Purchase this new video or DVD

(please specify which you would like– video #047 or DVD #047)

Write to:

Montana State University Extension Publications

Montana State University

P.O. Box 172040

Bozeman, Montana 59717-2040

Or, call: (406) 994-3273

Or, online at: www.montana.edu/publications